

How to Fix Daily Earnings in Trading (₹2K / ₹4K / ₹6K)

Look at any businessman or shopkeeper.

They open the shop every day.

Some days customers come, some days they don't.

Some days profit is good, some days it's zero.

But one thing is fixed:

- * Rent has to be paid

- * Electricity bill has to be paid

- * Staff salary has to be paid

They don't sit all night trying to recover a bad day.

They don't double the price the next day out of frustration.

They trust the process and stay consistent.

Now compare this with stock market traders.

A trader wants:

- * One big trade to recover everything

- * One lucky day to change life

- * One overtrade session to "finish target"

This is where consistency breaks.

Professional traders think differently.

They fix process, not excitement.

Example:

- * Yearly target: ₹5–6 Lakhs

- * Trading days: ~240

- * Required daily average: ₹2K–₹3K

That's it.

Some days you'll make ₹4K–₹6K.

Some days you'll make nothing.

Some days you'll stop at breakeven.

And that is normal business behaviour, not failure.

Consistency is built by:

- * Fixed daily profit limit
- * Fixed max loss
- * Fixed number of trades
- * Walking away after target or SL

Don't chase big money.
Chase survival + discipline.

Big money is a by-product of small, repeated, boring profits.

Trading is not about one day.
Trading is about staying in the game for years.
