A Best Trading Strategy For IPO Stocks

Simple & rules based trading setup for best returns

Complete Thread...

1. Pre-Listing Analysis:-

Understand the Business: Research the company's fundamentals, industry, and growth potential

Check Valuation: Compare the IPO valuation with industry peers

2. Observe Listing Day:-

Monitor Opening Price: Compare the listing price to the IPO issue price

First 60-Minute Range: Let the price settle and observe the high and low for the first 60 minutes

3. Entry Setup:-

Wait for the Listing day close & mark the High & Low of Listing Day

Breakout Entry: Enter when the stock breaks above the listing day high with strong volume

Pullback Entry: If it pulls back to the breakout level and holds

Enter on a bullish candlestick confirmation

Some Examples:-

1. #SWIGGY:-

Broke listing day's high and stock rallied

From 465 —» 615

30% Returns in just 40 days

Maintain the Stop loss always below the Listing day low

4. Risk Management:-

Stop Loss: Place a stop loss slightly below the low of the Listing Day

Position Sizing: Risk only 2-3% of your trading capital on each trade

5. Exit Plan:-

Partial Profit Booking: Book partial profits at a 2:1 or 3:1 risk-to-reward ratio

Trail Stop Loss: Use a trailing stop loss to ride the trend while protecting gains

Target Setting: Use resistance levels, Fibonacci extensions, or round numbers as profit targets

6. Advance Tips:-

Avoid Overtrading: Not every IPO is worth trading. Stick to those with strong fundamentals and demand

Be Cautious with Hype: Avoid getting carried away by overly hyped IPOs without proper analysis

Diversify: Don't put all your capital into a single IPO stock
